Alcohol and Suicide: What is Known About the Link and What Can Be Done

Kenneth Conner, PsyD, MPH

Professor, Department of Psychiatry
University of Rochester Medical Center
Director, VISN 2 Center of Excellence for Suicide Prevention
Canandaigua VA Medical Center

Alcohol confers risk for suicidal behavior through its chronic effects, for example as manifested in alcohol use disorder, and through its acute effects, particularly instances of intoxication. Epidemiological studies and clinical research on the links between alcohol and suicidal behavior will be discussed along with opportunities for prevention and treatment.
