COURSE DESCRIPTION

Faculty involved in teaching medical students and residents need to improve their teaching techniques and to understand new concepts in learning. A better understanding of academic career development and the issues facing women and under-represented minorities in academic medical centers will also help all faculty.

This Colloquium is intended to meet these needs by providing both lectures and interactive workshops covering a variety of topics. Interactive sessions and posters by Colloquium participants will foster the interchange of ideas.

ACTIVITY OBJECTIVES

After attending this Colloquium, the participant will:

- ◆ More clearly appreciate issues regarding diversity and interprofessional education in the academic medical center.
- ◆ Gain new ideas regarding teaching, learning, and the technology available to enhance the experience.
- ◆ Develop strategies for personal development, mentoring and academic career planning.
