Environment, Sensory Processing and Alzheimer's Dementia
Monday December 7, 2009 – Kathleen M. Bishop, PhD

Dr. Bishop will discuss simple, practical, and cost effective ways to modify the environment to help promote maintenance of functioning and health within the disease of Alzheimer's dementia. She will also discuss the changing needs of individuals with the disease as well as systematic changes that agencies and families can implement to help facilitate quality of life and functioning for people with DD and Alzheimer's dementia.

Healthy People 2010 & 2020: Where do older adults with developmental disabilities fit in?

Tuesday January 26, 2010 – Laura M. Robinson, MPH

The demographics of the US will shift over the next several decades, including a significant increase in the number of people over age 65. Healthy People 2010 was designed to: 1) increase quality and years of life and 2) eliminate health disparities. There is potential for these goals to have a profound impact on health, quality of life and access to care for older individuals. As 2010 begins, let's review how far the Health People initiative has come, it's impact on the health of older adults and older adults with developmental disabilities, updates for Healthy People 2020, and consider how can we apply the results to our homes/programs.
