PLC Case Study

Directions: Please answer the following questions with as much detail as possible. You may do this in the space provided below and on the back of this page.

Case: For the first time, a 14-year old girl and her mother present to you for care. The mother was born and raised in Puerto Rico. Her daughter was born in Puerto Rico, but came here at the age of five and has attended public schools in the Rochester City School District since. The mother is concerned because despite repeated attempts, her daughter is unable to become pregnant with her 28-year old boyfriend.

Questions: Describe how you would approach this case. Also, consider your reactions to the case. How might your own cultural background either help you understand what is going on and/or how might it constrain your understanding or ability to explore the situation?
