

INTERDISCIPLINARY CLINICAL ETHICS NOON CONFERENCE

Facing History: American Eugenics, Past and Present

Presented by:

Bernard Sussman, MD

Professor of Clinical Medicine and Health Humanities

The Eugenics movement in early 20th century United States is little known but important in understanding contemporary issues of health care bias and inequality. This conference will review the history of Eugenics in the US, its roots in white supremacy, its influence on immigration restriction policies and explore how its influence persists in medicine today.
