Description:
This session will provide participants with a sound understanding of developing hazard-specific and functional annexes to a local comprehensive emergency management plan (CEMP). Participants will be provided with practical application of risk-based planning, and will learn the methodology for incorporating annexes into their own existing plans. Participants will also learn the mechanisms for developing their own capability-based plans under an Emergency Support Function (ESF) format for their own planning purposes.

Course Curriculum and Topics:
NYS Legal Basis for Planning, Federal planning guidance, the planning process, Risk Assessment, Risk and capabilities-based planning, hands-on plan review (if desired).

Prerequisites:
Participants must have completed the Emergency Planning Course (G-235b) or Independent Study IS 235b. Participants are also recommended to complete the following FEMA Independent Study (IS) courses: IS-700.a, NIMS, An Introduction, and IS-800.B, NRF, An Introduction to enhance the learning experience.
