

Mental Health Consequences of Infectious Disease Outbreaks - HPP Deliverable # 5

Overview

Once again, OMH and NYSDOH will co-sponsor a training that will be simultaneously web streamed throughout New York State. This year's training, developed with the Institute for Disaster Mental Health (IDMH) at SUNY New Paltz, will explore mental health consequences of infectious disease outbreaks and why understanding and addressing the anxiety tied to infectious disease is essential to improving compliance with public health measures like quarantine recommendations and PODs, maintaining workforce resilience among healthcare workers, and reducing traumatic reactions for all involved. The proposed training will identify the diverse groups who are likely to be impacted during and after an infectious disease outbreak and provide guidance on how to address these complex needs.
