

HAZMAT for the First Receiver: Awareness Level Refresher - ONLINE FLRRC-001

Background:

The FLRTC Hazmat for First Receiver Awareness Level Refresher Online Training is OSHA compliant. For details please refer to OSHA Best Practices for Hospital-Based First Receivers Section C.0. It is equivalent to the didactic component of an annual Hazmat for the First Receiver Refresher.

Course Description:

The Awareness Level Refresher Online Training is composed of a series of video modules, each followed by a short quiz.

Modules include the following:

- General Principles
- Chemical Agents
- Biological Agents
- Radiological Agents
- Decontamination Operations
- NDLSF Decontamination Video (used with permission)

The course is set up to be completed in the order it is presented. The quizzes after each module must be completed and passed before the student can continue to the next module. The course takes approximately 2 hours to complete. Students do not have to complete all modules in one session. The system will save the students work. To save work, click on the "EXIT" button.

Target Audience:

Awareness: Staff who may come in contact with contaminated individuals arriving (self presenting) to the hospital. Examples include ED clinicians, ED clerks, ED triage staff and hospital security.

Refresher: Staff who have been designated to provide treatment, triage, decontamination or other services to contaminated individuals.

Pre-Requisites:

Awareness: None or previously trained at the Awareness Level

Refresher: Trained to Operations level under 29CFR1910.120 (q) (6) (ii).

NOTE: In order to meet OSHA standards for annual refresher training, staff will need to demonstrate competency in the proper donning and doffing of PPE, review their hospital specific hazmat plans and complete their hospital's respirator medical evaluation questionnaire. Per OSHA, first responder awareness training can count towards the 8-hour Operations Level training.
