Stories for the health of our community.

Holiday Greetings from CEO David Linehan, MD

For many people the holidays are a time to give to others, lend a hand, show they care. At the University of Rochester Medical Center, these things happen every day, all year round.

Celebrating the Medical Center's centennial has helped us focus on the vital role we play in our community and the world. As we prepare to celebrate the new year, it's also a chance to look forward at how we'll continue to make a difference in the future.

Best wishes for a healthy, peaceful holiday season and bright start to the new year.

Yours,

David Linehan, MD
CEO, University of Rochester Medical Center
Dean, School of Medicine and Dentistry
Senior Vice President for Health Sciences

Translating science into hope

The University of Rochester Center for Health + Technology (CHeT) stands as one of academic medicine's most successful experiments in translating science into patient benefit. Over nearly four decades, CHeT has played an instrumental role in bringing 12 drugs and devices to market—including landmark treatments for Parkinson's, Huntington's, and neuromuscular diseases—while pioneering new ways to design, measure, and deliver clinical trials. Coping with two cancers, Geneva woman benefits from care close to home

When Maria Garcia-Rivera found out she had multiple myeloma in 2007, her doctor at the time told her she probably had about 10 to 12 years to live. It's been 18 years. Through it all, Maria's UR Medicine and Wilmot Cancer Institute teams in Geneva and Rochester have kept her going with many new options. (Estimated reading time: 3 minutes)
