Bridging Geriatrics and Palliative Medicine

Thomas V. Caprio, MD, MPH, MSHPE, CMD, HMDC, FACP, AGSF, FAAHPM
Associate Professor of Medicine/Geriatrics, Dentistry, Clinical Nursing, & Public Health Sciences; Program Director, Geriatric Medicine Fellowship; Director, Finger Lakes Geriatric Education Center; Medical Director, University of Rochester Geriatric Assessment Clinic; Chief Medical Officer, UR Medicine Home Care; Medical Director, Visiting Nurse Hospice & Palliative Care, University of Rochester Medical Center

The fields of geriatrics and palliative care embrace a number of shared precepts in the approach to patients in which the overarching goal is not to cure or modify the underlying disease process but instead focuses on quality of life and symptom management. Older adult patients with physical frailty, cognitive loss, and multiple chronic medical conditions can make it challenging to assess palliative care needs and develop person-centered plans of care. This presentation will review the shared goals of palliative care and geriatrics, focus on the key trajectories of decline in an older frail population, and allow participants to reflect on the important dimensions in assessing the needs of older patients across the continuum of clinical care.

9:15 – 10:15am  Running an Intra-Professional Palliative Hospital Consult Service

Michael Frankenthaler, MD, FCCP
Assistant Professor of Medicine, New York Medical College; Chief, Palliative Medicine, Westchester Medical Center

This presentation will explain the workings of a hospital consult service in the era of intra–professional collaboration. The roles of clinician, social worker & chaplaincy will be explored, enabling each member of the team to practice to the highest levels of their licensure. Working with and educating other hospital departments & services will be stressed.

10:15 – 10:30am  Coffee Break

10:30 – 11:45am  Breakout Sessions:  Choose Lecture 1 or 2

1 – Maternal Mortality: The Race to Achieve Equity in the Twenty-First Century
Mary Beth Morrissey, PhD, MPH, JD
President, Collaborative for Palliative Care
Karen Bullock, PhD, LCSW
Professor, Department of Social Work, North Carolina State University

The United States lags behind other developed nations in maternal mortality outcomes. New York State is also grappling with high maternal death rates among black women and documented health disparities across the state including New York City. The magnitude of this public health problem and its deep social and economic determinants call for a community-based, palliative approach to care. Presenters will examine the multiple dimensions of the problem, explain the palliative approach to care as a social model, and discuss implications for aging.

2 – Unique Approaches to Pediatric Palliative Patients
Gary Tatz, MD
Associate Professor of Pediatrics; Director, Pediatric Pain and Palliative Medicine; Attending, Pediatric Critical Care Medicine, Maria Fareri Children’s Hospital, New York Medical College
Bruce C. Page MAT, MDiv
Director, Volunteer Services & Bereavement Coordinator, Hospice of Westchester

Children make up a tiny percentage of patients who receive palliative care. Working with children and their families is often described as being some of our most challenging cases. Caring for an infant is very different than caring for an adolescent, which is very different than caring for an adult. Pediatric palliative care brings distinctive challenges that require a unique approach. Case discussion will highlight those differences and provide suggestions on how to best approach these patients and their families.

11:45 – 12:30pm  Box Lunch

12:30 – 12:35 pm  Appreciation
Mecca Santana, Esq.
Senior VP, Diversity, Inclusion and Community Engagement, and Chief Diversity Officer, Westchester Medical Center

12:35 – 12:45pm  Presentation of the Inaugural Honorable Kevin J. Quaranta Award in Clinical Ethics: Champion of the Suffering Person
Mary Beth Morrissey, PhD, MPH, JD
President, Collaborative for Palliative Care

12:45 – 1:45pm  The Inaugural Honorable Kevin J. Quaranta Lecture
Why Aid In Dying is Not the Remedy of Life’s End
Joseph J. Fins, MD, MA, CP, FRCP
The E. William Davis, Jr., M.D. Professor of Medical Ethics, Chief, Division of Medical Ethics & Professor of Medicine, Weill Cornell Medical College; Director of Medical Ethics & Attending Physician, New York Presbyterian Hospital, Weill Cornell Medical Center; Co-Director, Consortium for the Advanced Study of Brain Injury (CASBI), Weill Cornell and Rockefeller University

This presentation will review the Aid in Dying movement and offer an ethical clinical and response.

1:45 – 1:55pm  Coffee Break

1:55 – 2:55pm  The William Dawe Lecture
New Approaches to Meeting Palliative Care Needs in the Community
M. Carrington Reid, MD, PhD
The Irving Sherwood Wright Professor of Geriatrics; Director, Translational Research Institute on Pain in Later Life (TRIPLL), Weill Cornell Medical College

In reviewing current models of delivering palliative care, discussion will include barriers to meeting growing palliative care needs in diverse populations while highlighting innovative models of identifying and intervening when there are palliative care needs in non-clinical settings.

2:55 – 3:00pm  Closing Remarks & Evaluation
Mary Beth Morrissey, PhD, MPH, JD
President, Collaborative for Palliative Care
ACCME Standards of Commercial Support of CME require that presentations be free of commercial bias and that any information regarding commercial products/services be based on scientific methods generally accepted by the medical community. When discussing therapeutic options, faculty are requested to use only generic names. If they use a trade name, then those of several companies should be used. If a presentation includes discussion of any unlabeled or investigational use of a commercial product, faculty are required to disclose this to the participants.
