We’re Leading a National Movement to Improve How Doctors Learn Quality and Safety

• As a URMC resident or fellow, you will have a unique opportunity to pioneer a new model for how new doctors learn about quality and safety.

• The URMC is one of only eight organizations chosen by the ACGME to help transform the way physicians, residents and other health care providers work together to improve quality and safety, and boost patient outcomes.

• The initiative aims to close the gap between what you learned in medical school and the skills that you will need to be successful in real-world practice within a value-driven and increasingly-transparent health care system.

• As part of this effort, you will learn how to lead and contribute to a multidisciplinary, high-performing, outcomes-driven team, and how to interpret and use data to drive measurable improvements in patient outcomes.

• Becoming a quality-conversant physician who can collaborate and lead exemplary health care teams will make you a rare and valuable commodity to the health care system, no matter where you decide to practice in your career.

“Our residents have a unique opportunity for professional growth while playing a key role in transforming the clinical learning environment here at URMC and across the country.

You will be an integral voice for positive change.”

– Diane Hartmann, MD, Senior Associate Dean for Graduate Medical Education

For more information on the national initiative, visit: acgme.org