

Junior Faculty Biomedical Research Association

Co-sponsored by URSMD Office for Faculty Development and UR Clinical and Translational Science Institute

Call for Nominations

We are now accepting nominations for the following positions within JFBRA:

1. Co-director (start July 2023)
2. Co-director (start July 2024)

Position Summary

JFBRA leadership is comprised of two co-directors and one faculty advisor. This group is responsible for all operational duties pertaining to the JFBRA.

Responsibilities

The co-directors of JFBRA organize three meetings (lectures, presentations, etc.) each year. They are responsible for choosing topics and dates, inviting speakers, and coordinating with the Office of Faculty Development (which handles dissemination of information regarding the events). Co-directors are expected to attend and direct these meetings. They are also responsible for choosing the next co-directors and are expected to function as the JFBRA faculty advisor at the end of their term. The expected time commitment is ~15-20 hours per year.

Qualifications

We strive for a diverse JFBRA leadership, including demographics, educational background, clinical and research interest, and career trajectory.

Required:

- Instructor, assistant professor or associate professor at URM
- Engaged in clinical or basic science research

Preferred:

- Principle Investigator
- Grant funding: NIH, institutional or foundation awards
